City OKs nerve gas research

Things are rather exasperating for Dr. Ronald L. Sanders, a biochemist at Tufts University School of Medicine in China-

The research assistant professor of anatomy and cellular biology is sitting on top of a $573,000 grant from the U.S. Medical Research Defense Command for a three-year project that promises the heady possibility of a sweet scientific breakthrough.

The exasperating part for Sanders is that his proposed research is not being given the kind of public support that is usually reserved for inquisitive men like him — support given in the name of science.

In fact, Sanders' project has caused quite a few nervous jitters among many people who live or work near his downtown laboratory, where he will do his

The trouble, of course, is that the biochemist's experiments will involve a highly toxic and dangerous chemical warfare nerve gas, a certain organophosphate called soman.

Now, to be sure, Sanders proposes to use only minute amounts of the chemical. He wants to test its various effects on mammalian lung tissues, to see how the alveolar damage caused by soman can provide information that may lead to a more effective treatment for those exposed to such agents.

He says his research will be a stepping stone to the development of treatments for lung damage not only in military situations, but also in farm accidents or other occurrences involving pesticides.

Sometime in late November or early December, Sanders will start receiving from the U.S. Department of Defense shipments of four milligrams of soman each for the project. Under the terms of the contract. the researcher is only permitted to keep up to 4 mg. of the chemical in his laboratory at any

There have been repeated and Sanders himself that the experiments will in no way endanger public safety in the vicinity.

There remains concern — and objections from several Chinatown leaders — however, and an informational public hearing was held on Oct. 1 at the Josiah

Quincy School.

Officials from Tufts and the City's Department of Health and Hospitals, which in July gave the go-ahead to Sanders' project, presented for the record several documents, parts of which follow:

Tufts University Statement on Proposed Research Involving Soman: About 18 months ago, in response to an ad placed by the U.S. Medical Research Defense assistant professor at Tufts University School of Medicine, submitted a proposal for funding support for a project concern-ed with lung function.

NEMC doctor picked for study on hemorrhagic fever in China

By Peter Bagley

A new England Medical Center physician has been recruited by the United States Army as a consultant to a research project in China, which is testing a drug to circumvent Korean hemorrhagic fever, a spreading disease in China and an illness vexing American soldiers in

The project, which began as a collective study between a doctor from the U.S. Army Research Institute in Fort Meade, Md., and the Hubei Medical College in Wuhan, represents the first time that a U.S. military medical team has been permitted to conduct experiments in China since World War II.

Te-Wen Chang, a Chinese immigrant doctor at NEMC who heard about and expressed interest in the study, was swiftly enlisted to act as a monitor for the project because of his knowledge of Chinese medical terminology and his connections with those in medical circles in China.

Both the Chinese and U.S. armed forces have special interests in combatting the virus. There is still no known cure for Korean hemorrhagic fever, which plagues thousands of rural Chinese as well as U.S. soldiers stationed in South Ko-

The disease, which causes bleeding from the skin, nose, mouth and intestines, and in some cases kidney failure, was confined to Manchuria early this century. But it quickly spread throughout the rest of China shortly after the Korean War in the 1950s, when throngs of soldiers passed through the disease-striken areas to fight on the Korean peninsula.

According to Chang, several thousand U.S. soldiers perished during the Korean War from the virus, which is carried by rodents.

Up to two thirds of the rural Chinese population are at risk of acquiring the virus, and it can now affect up to 13 percent of the rural population in endemic regions, says Chang.

Humans are most vulnerable to the virus during the winter, when rats nestle in human dwellings to stay out of the cold.

Chinatown restaurant operator faces charges for tax evasion

Harry G. Mook, owner of the Four Seas Restaurant in Chinatown, was arraigned on Sept. 30 on charges of tax fraud and perjury brought by the state Attorney General's Office.

Mook, 48, of Chestnut Hill, was arraigned on the charges in Suffolk Superior Court - where just minutes before he handed over nearly $200,000 in cashier's checks to the state Department of Revenue as restitution and penalties from earlier tax fraud indictments.

He pleaded not guilty to charges of 25 counts each of failure to file and failure to pay withholding taxes, 24 counts of failure to account for and pay over withholding taxes, 24 counts of failure to account for and pay over meals taxes, and one count of perjury.

The offenses allegedly oc-curred between July 1983 and August 1985, and are the result of indictments returned by a Suffolk County Grand jury on Sept. 19.

Mook could not be reached for comment last week.

According to Assistant Attorney General Frederick W. Riley, chief of criminal bureau, this case represents the first time in state history that a perjury indictment has been brought against a tax fraud defendant under the recently enacted Revenue Enforcement and Protection Program statute.

Under the new law, persons applying for permits or licenses must state under penalty of perjury whether they are in current compliance with tax laws of the Commonwealth, according to Riley.

Mook, in applying for a 1985 victualer's license on Dec. 5 last year, allegedly stated he was in compliance despite the fact he was under indictment for failure to file and non-payment of meals taxes, Riley said.

In court on Sept. 30, Mook, a past president of the Chinese Free Masons Association, produced five cashier's checks totaling $198,069.22 in payment of taxes and penalties owed which formed the basis for his earlier indictment.

He was indicted in 1984 by a Suffolk County Grand Jury on 106 counts of failure to file and failure to pay meal taxes. Similar charges were brought against his firm, M & H Associates Inc., which runs the Four Seas Restaurant at 4 Tyler St. in Chinatown.

Judge Harry J. Elam on Aug. 28 this year sentenced Mook to one year in jail but later stayed sentence and allowed the defendant 30 days to raise the delinquent amount.

A pre-trial conference on the charges have been scheduled by Judge Elam for Nov. 14. Assistant Attorney General Edward McLaughlin will be prosecuting the case on evidence developed by the Criminal Investigations Bureau of the state Department of Revenue.

Meanwhile, state officials said the Mook case should serve as a warning to all taxpayers.

Commented Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti, "Our arsenal of weapons to pursue tax offenders is growing. There are sharp legal teeth in the requirement that licensees swear under pen-alties of perjury that they are meeting their state tax obliga-

"The Department of Revenue will not be deterred in going after tax evasion and tax criminals in its efforts to protect honesttaxpayers," said Thomas D. Herman, first deputy commissioner of the DOR. "It should be plain, too, that we will be monitoring taxpayers in meeting any restitution orders set by the court.

"Mook's arrest and incarceration for a time last month should serve as a warning to others.'

Judge issues orders in racial cases in East Boston, Revere

For the tenth time since the state Civil Rights Act became law in 1979, Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti has filed suit to protect Asian Americans from racial harassment.

On Sept. 24, Bellotti, acting on information provided by the Boston Police Department's Community Disorders Unit and the Boston Housing Authority, obtained a series of orders against six East Boston adults charged with violating the civil rights of Vietnamese families living in the Orient Heights housing development in East Boston.

Suffolk Superior Court Judge John J. Irwin Jr. approved final consent judgments against four of the six defendants charged with harassing the Vietnamese residents. The judgments permanently prohibit the defendants from further harassing any individual of any race or national origin, and order them to stay away from the victims' homes.

Judge Irwin issued preliminary injunctions against two other defendants which spell out the same restrictions as the judgments. The last two defendants could face civil trials on the charges. Violations of the orders or the judgments would result in contempt of court charges.

Bellotti identified the defendants who signed consent judgments as Ralph Rizzuti and John E. Whidden, both 18 and of 41 Vallor Road, John T. McDonald, 17, of 211 Faywood Ave., and Anthony Corrado, 22, of 199 Faywood Ave.

Preliminary injunctions were issued against John G. Albano, 22, of 199 Faywood Ave., and Joseph Mathieson, 18, of 50 Vallor Road. All the defendants live in East Boston.

Bellotti filed a complaint Sept. 20 charging that the defendants repeatedly spat upon the victims, shouted racial slurs and vandalized their cars.

He commended the work of the BPD's Community Disorers Unit, which brought the case to the attention of the attorney general's Civil Rights Division.

Wilson: 'Welcome to parents' forum'

The following letter is addressed to all parents of Boston Public Schools students.

As your new Superintendent of Schools, I want to hear your viewpoints and concerns about our schools.

I have planned 10 open community forums — one in each of the nine electoral districts and one citywide forum. The forums are open to parents, students, concerned citizens and school staff.

You are invited to attend the forum scheduled for your electoral district — the neighborhood you live in. Each forum will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. While planned for all citizens and parents, the citywide forum will be to encourage the participation of representatives of business and industry, cultural organizations, colleges and human service agencies.

If you wish to speak at the forum, you should sign up between 6:15 and 7 p.m. on the date and at the site scheduled for your electoral district's forum. Each speaker will be allowed three minutes to make a statement. If you do not wish to speak at the forum or if there is not enough time for all speakers, forms will be available at the forum for you to submit in writing your viewpoints on the issues that you feel need to be addressed by the Superintendent and the School Committee.

I hope you will join me at the forum in your district so I may hear the viewpoints and concerns from all groups and neighborhoods in the city. Your School Committee representative and other School Department staff will be present at the forum.

As we move together to improve instruction and achievement for all students, I will need your support and involvement in school district activities.

(The community forum for South End, Chinatown, South Boston and Dorchester will be held at the Josiah Quincy School, 885 Washington St., Boston, on Nov. 1.)

If you have any questions or need further information, please call Robert C. Hayden at 726-6200, ext. 5313.

Eddie Liu, a 15-year-old sophomore at North Quincy High School, was selected as the "super grand prize winner" of WCVB-Tv's recent "A World of Difference" poster contest.

Governor Michael S. Dukakis presented the award to Liu at a State House Ceremony Sept. 11. Three other students each won a "grand prize" in the contest. Liu's poster will be displayed on Ackerly billboards throughout Eastern Massachusetts. He and the other three each won a trip to Disney's Magic Kingdom, including Epcot Center, courtesy of Eastern Airlines and the Hotel Royal Plaza.

Last spring, WCVB invited students in all public, private and parochial schools to address artistically the subject of racial, religious, or ethnic prejudice. Each school selected three entries per grade to send to Channel 5, which, along with the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, the Greater Boston Civil Rights Coalition, and Shawmut Banks, sponsored the year-long prejudice awareness and reduction campaign.

By June 14, the entry deadline, more than 800 entries had been received, representing thousands of youngsters who participated. The grand prize winners were chosen from 12 school grade winners, who were also honored by Gov. Dukakis at the ceremony. The 12 winning posters will be included in WCVB's 1986 "A World of Difference" calendar.

Liu emigrated from Hong Kong with his parents, Hung-Kuon Liu and Wuai-Fong Liu, when he was four. He will take the winning trip (for four) with his parents and little brother Raymond.

Asked how he felt about winning the contest, a reticent Liu told The SAMPAN: "I am very happy."

We are, too, Eddie.

about receiving American help, will leave for China in November to help supervise the testing on ailing patients of the drug "ribaviris," which is hoped to be the fever's panacea.

The U.S.Army, according to Chang, is willing to spend up to $1 million on the testing of ribaviris on victims. But in order for the drug to win Federal Drug Administration approval for use on Americans, the experiments must be conducted with strict precision and meet high standards.

With that requisite in mind, the U.S. team is upgrading and refurbishing the facilities at the college, a welcome change at a school in need of new equipment and where officials are furiously seeking new ways to curtail the fever.

"We practically modernized all the laboratories at the medical college," says Chang. "There was a lot of money involved, so everyone was eager to help the military's research program."

Chang and an official from the U.S. Army Research Institute traveled to Wuhan last July to settle all the preliminary contracts and agreements. The research will shift to its full gear this winter.

Korean hemorrhagic fever is most prevalent in areas with poor sanitation. The virus, found in the urine of infected rats, enters the human body through inhalation or by the swallowing of contaminated agents.

The virus is believed to be

The virus is believed to be carried by rats in the U.S. as well, in areas such as the Chesapeake Bay region. But effective sanitation systems in the U.S. generally prevent the chance of humans catching the disease.

Symptoms usually appear in humans about a week after the disease is contracted. According to Chang, the fever causes bleeding from the skin, nose and mouth, as well as inside the intestines.

For about 10 percent of humans who acquire the illness, their kidneys will collapse after a short time, says Chang.

The kidneys in these seriously affected persons never fully recover, and the patients can only survive if they periodically underwent kidney dialysis treatment.

Chang says that ribaviris, produced by the Viratech Company of Los Angeles, may be available in the U.S. soon to treat other diseases. It is currently being analyzed to determine if it would resist acquired immune deficiency syndrome—better known as AIDS.

A Sunday Diversion

By Laura Tai

BOSTON — The year was 1903*. The date: Oct. 11 — almost exactly 82 years ago.

For three hours on a rainy Sunday night, the U.S. Immigration Service, with help from the Boston Police Department, entered the homes, shops, and restaurants of Chinatown—ostensibly to arrest all Chinese men who could not immediately produce documentation proving their American citizenship.

They arrested over 300 men, in what was described at the time as 'the biggest raid ever executed in the United States,' and took the men by wagon, cart and trolley to Charles Street Jail where they were herded into overcrowded cells and kept without food for many hours.

Of all those arrested, only a 53-year-old man — who had been living in the U.S. for 25 years — was eventually unable to produce proof of citizenship. The rest of the Chinese men were either American-born or naturalized citizens.

Immigration officials said the primary motivation for the Chinatown raid was reports indicating that many residents were there 'in violation of the Chinese Exclusion Act.'

Passed in 1882, the Act essentially stopped all migration of Chinese into the United States. It held the "honorable" position of having been the first piece of legislation to target one specific nationality, and was to be in effect until 1943, when it was repealed.

The Boston Police Department, meanwhile, offered a different explanation for the raid

It suggested that a recent outbreak of factional violence between various groups in San Francisco's Chinatown, coupled with the fear that the violence would spread to Boston, had precipitated the arrests.

Shortly before the raid, a member of a Chinatown group was killed by a member of a rival gang. The BPD, disregarding the constitutional rights of the Chinese Americans, decided that a show of force would instill the "proper subservience" and "restore the peace."

Contemporary Boston newspapers treated the raid as a humorous escapade, and their accounts were accompanied by stereotypical sketches of pigtailed men — in baggy suits — who had their arms up their sleeves

Many white Bostonians, however, were supportive of the Chinese Americans' civil rights. An 'indignation meeting' was held shortly after the raid, at which businessmen, lawyers, and clergymen spoke in outrage over the incident, calling the 'lawless acts of the officials ... dangerous to public liberty and in defiance of constitutional rights.'

The jocular treatment of the raid in the newspapers — where the rounding up of "chinks," "Chinamen," and "celestials" was regarded as a pleasant Sunday diversion — prompted one William Lloyd Garrison to write, most aptly: "The current apathy on aggressions of this kind is deplorable. A disregard for the inalienable rights of others is a sure preparation for our own subjection."

Asians get relief in 2 court orders

"Civil rights enforcement is a cooperative effort," Bellotti said. "This office, the Boston Police Department and the Boston Housing Authority will enforce the orders handed down today and make every effort to prevent a recurrence of these kinds of incidents.

kinds of incidents.

"Sgt. Bill Johnston (of the Community Disorders Unit) deserves a tremendous amount of credit, not only for his commitment to civil rights, but for his investigative technique."

The case is being handled for the attorney general by Assistant Attorney General Diana T. Tanaka

An order issued in Revere case

Meanwhile, in a separate civil rights case, the Attorney General's Office has obtained a court order prohibiting six white dedendants from assaulting, harassing, or intimidating Cambodian residents in Revere.

Judge Irwin on Sept. 26 issued a preliminary injunction against Peter Baker, 21, of Revere, and five male juveniles. In addition to prohibiting further harassment, the injunction enjoins the defendants from traveling on specific streets and from speaking to the victims.

No order was issued against a seventh defendant, Robert Lee Stephens, 27, of Revere, who is currently incarcerated on criminal charges.

The complaints and affidavits filed by Attorney General Bellotti allege that in June, the defendants broke windows of the home occupied by the Cambodian victims and assaulted the residents.

The complaints also charge that several days later the defendants jumped on a Cambodian resident's car while he was inside, and threatened to beat him.

The Revere case is being handled for Bellotti by Assistant Attorney General Allan Fierce from the Civil Rights Division.

City OKs nerve gas research

".... Dr. Sanders' proposed research would involve studies to determine the various effects that a certain organophosphate, soman, has upon the alveolar region of the lung....

region of the lung....

"The faculty of the Department of Anatomy and Cellular Biology, where the research would take place, considered the proposal at length. In addition to touching on the scientific merits of the proposed research, the faculty discussed its political, ethical and safety ramifications. The faculty concluded that if the proposal was approved and funded by the Defense Command, and before any work was begun, the laboratory facility should be inspected and evaluated by an outside agency.

agency.

'An informational meeting was held for the medical student class presidents.

'The University's Department of Safety evaluated and gave approval to the

"The proposal was presented to the Medical School's Executive Council and was found to pose no risk to researchers, staff, campus personnel and the community.

"The Department of Health and Hospitals, Office of Environmental Affairs, reviewed the project and found there is no health-related cause to oppose the proposed study, and that provisions for security, safety, and medical surveillance appear to be appropriate for a 4 mg. inventory of soman.

"The Department of Health and Hospitals will monitor the project and has also ordered that Tufts meet a number of controls and guidelines while the research is underway.

search is underway.

"In addition to an evaluation of the facility by the U.S. Medical Research Defense Command, the laboratory and its safety procedures were reviewed by two private, independent environmental consultants and industrial hygienists.

"Dr. Sanders proposes to study the effects of dilute amounts of soman. The total amount of soman on hand in the laboratory at any one time would be none-lethal and no special containment facilities other than secure storage would be required. (Comparable to Class 1 narcotics).

"The hazards in those minuscule amounts are no greater than with many other compounds used in homes, farms, and industry in this city and throughout the country.

"The laboratory personnel who would be involved are experienced in handling toxic substances. The worst accident would not result in injury to personnel serious enough to require hospitalization.

"Because chemicals of this class are known to cause adverse reactions in certain occupational situations (such as crop spraying), the information obtained in this research might be used in better understanding how to prevent and treat such toxicity.

".... As of this date, no compounds for study nave been provided by the Medical Research Defense Command or by any Statement by the City of Boston Department of Health and Hospitals, Office of Environmental Affairs: ".... On oehalf of the Commissioner and Board of Health and Hospitals, the Office of Environmental Affairs has examined into this proposed use of a highly toxic and dangerous chemical.... The following findings have been made regarding the use as proposed:

use as proposed:
1. Soman is without question, a highly toxic and dangerous chemical warfare nerve gas.

''2. Under the term of the military contract, the maximum quantity to be permitted at Tufts Medical School is 4 milligrams, an amount considered to be non-lethal for man through any accidenal route of exposure.

"3. Soman decomposes at a rate of 50 percent each 30 minutes when held at room temperature. No spilled soman would remain active within a few hours after a spill. There is no possibility of undetected soman spills accumulating over a period of months or years to reach a dangerous level.

"4. If all safety programs were to fail and the entire 4 mg. inventory be released under the most unfavorable conditions conceivable, there would be only a slight risk of a normal healthy lab worker experiencing temporarily incapacitating health effects. It is highly unlikely that any person in the Medical School Building outside the laboratory would experience any symptoms of soman exposure. There is no prospect of an accidental release affecting the public located off site.

an accidental release affecting the public located off site.

"5. A comparison of the controversial Arthur D. Little Research in Cambridge with the Tufts proposal has been made by the Office of Environmental Affairs. The volume of soman that would be received by Tufts if undiluted is less than one tenth of one drop. The chemical inventory for the Arthur D. Little study is 100 milliliters or 25,000 times greater than proposed for the Tufts study. The safety of Cambridge residents and Arthur D. Little staff would have depended on a safe design of the Arthur D. Little facility and the careful work practices of laboratory staff. If all Tufts safety provisions failed and an accident in the handling of the chemical agent occurred at Tufts, no serious health effects are possible.

"As a result of these findings, the Office of Environmental Affairs could find no nuisances or health risks which can justify a prohibiting of the proposed located off site.

project. Orders to Tufts have been issued by the Office of Environmental Affairs regarding precautionary safety measures and to prevent any change in the proposed study that could create risks to the public health.

"These orders require that:

"1. No department from the final approved proposal will take place without Department of Health and Hospitals notification and agreement.

notification and agreement.

"2. No more than 4 milligrams of soman shall be kept on site. The remaining soman inventory will be immediately destroyed upon completion of the project of t of the project.

'3. Tufts shall notify the Department of Defense that no shipment of soman shall be made without a certificate from the Department of Health and Hospitals authorizing the shipment and quantity shipped. Tufts shall notify the Department when the project has been complete. ment when the project has been completed and the soman inventory destroyed.

'4. Tufts emergency room personnel shall be aware of the project and be made knowledgeable of the symptoms and treatments for organo-phosphate in-toxication to ensure that an unconscious, incapacitated victim will receive rapid appropriate treatment.

'5. Any of the following occurrences shall be immediately reported to the DHH-Office of Environmental Affairs: A. Symptoms of soman intoxication.

B. Detection of soman in laboratory air samples.

"C. A reduced acetyl cholinesterase activity in blood samples from lab personnel.
'D. Implementation of the emergency response plan.

"E. A break involving vandalism or the theft of soman."

In addition to the above orders, the researcher must submit monthly reports regarding the use of soman in experimentations to the Office of Environmental Affairs and to the U.S. Medical Research Defense Command.
